Learning that the cave would be illuminated on a certain day, we resolved to be present. Leaving Culpepper several hours after dark, we enjoyed a night-ride to Sperryville, a distance of twenty miles. Reaching the foot of the Blue Ridge at sunrise, we halted on the banks of a clear, sparkling stream for an hour's rest and breakfast. That stream! how we bathed our sleavy eyes and dispend our great desired. our sleepy eyes, and dipped our drowsy heads in its refreshing waters. And breakfast! coffee, boiling hot, clear, strong and sparkling; accompanied by ham, chicken, bread, butter, etc., etc. No Sybarite feast, served on regulation walnut, china and silver, ever equalled those cold viands partaken of from Nature's table, the ground; with column, a line of similar formations extend the length of the room. Passing on between this line and a wall on our left, we bow to his majesty, the Elephant, who estands on our path with ears downdrooping, and a row of lights on his back. Head and shoulders are perfect, even to coloring. Further on, a monkey's face looks up at us with an expression of preternatural sagacity. Next comes the Flower Garden, an enclosure on our left, where thousands of stalagmites, fantastically formed to resemble plants, glitter in the brilliant light. Now we enter the Araph', theatre, named because of its formation, rather than its size, having long-roofed galleries around its sides, and wall and celling grandly ornamented.

Preparing to descend a flight of steps, our attention is called to a huge rock on our right, which distinctly bears the claw marks of some animal, made in attempting to climb. Descending the step, we tread, our way through a ravine and up another flight, on a level with which hauges a row of fish, as plump and fresh looking as if just steps we would not agree upon, it was dropped by mother flight, on a level with which hauges a row of fish, as plump and fresh looking as if just steps we handle and rehes on cither side, every step presenting new objects of interest and beauty. On the walls of this hall hange Titania's Veil, a dainty, lace fabric cologing to steam and regular ras if laid on the result of the contrains drooping about its and the root of the around its sides and the results of the contrains drooping about its and the root of the contrains drooping about its and the root of the day with 'he was an other part of the contrains drooping and the type of other States. like a mist wreath.

The walk now leads over a hill, where the roof nearly touches our heads; and then we stand on the brink of Piuto's Chasm, which is forty feet wide and seventy feet deep. A railing protects his majesty's dominions, and we look shudderingly into the awful blackness of its depths; but, suddenly, a calcium light blazes on the scene, a thousand brilliant colors leap to vivid, sparkling life on the opposite wall, and the seful darkness is transferured into a tay. A highways sea

Excuse this long digression, but the subject always excites my ire, and I never know when to stop.

Leaving Crystal Spring, we descend the hill and, still keeping to the left, pass through a succession of halls, arches and chambers, abounding in magnificent scenic effects, every object brought into clear relief by thousands of glittering, sparkling lights.

In one of these, stands the Spectre, a tall white object, rising with truly spectral effect amid the shadows of a chasm; but leaving the walk, end clambering over a ledge of rocks, we stand on the verge directly opposite his ghostship, when lo! it is resolved into a magnificent snow-white pillar, forty feet high, a marvel of symmetry and beauty, capped with a square block, and resting on a pedestal that would set a sculptor mad with envy. The rocks in the bottom of the chasm show dimly through a soft blue haze. Gazing with clasped hands and bated breath on this grand spectacle, a nameless thrill passed over our heart, a vague reaching into the infinite, a whispering of the immortal spirit, which leaves us better and purer for all time.

The Ladies' Bathroom is an exquisite little alcove, draped and curtained with white, enclosing a tiny lake, crystal clear. Now we pass along the edge of a chasm, at one end of which a bold, mountainous wall supports a glacier-like formation, known as Brand's Cascade, its claims our attention.

Hovey's Balcony, overlooking Pluto's Chasm, is an exquisite little gem. The roof is covered with quaint-looking sheliwork, and the curtains drooping about its alender columns are of some pure, crystalline substance, hanging in natural, graceful folds, bordered with stripes of brown, as even and regular as if laid on with a painter's brush.

Dead-Man's Gulch contains no charms, only a portion of a human skeloton, in a terviewed, and complains that he is constantly misrepresented by persons whom he meets socially, and who turn out to be writers for newspapers. There are nice shades of meaning to words, he says, and very eften he uses certain words with deliberation and others somewhat synonymous, but still conveying a wrong impression, are put in his mouth. Thus, for instance, he complains that not long ago he was quoted in the Philadelphia Times in language that gave the impression that he considered Mr. Hayes' Administration very weak, whereas the ministration very weak, whereas the truth is he considers Mr. Hayes "a very good President," and believes that he has had the interests of all the country at heart, and administered to the best of his capacity.

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES.

The statement that has been made to the effect that Mr. Stephens favors Gen. the effect that Mr. Stephens favors Geo. Hancock as the Democratic nominee for next President he acknewledges as true, but says he has no opinion on the subject—for the public. General Hancock is simply his personal choice of those who have been named, because he is a high-minded gentleman, is eminently qualified for the position, and would be a strong candidate. He does not like Mr. Tilden for anything, did not support him before, and would not if he should be nominated again. When asked to state his objections to Mr. Tilden, he shook his head with decided negation, saying: "He's not the man; but I don't care to express any opinion on the subject. He might carry New York again but I don't tare those cold viands partaken of from Nature's table, the ground; with and the restful stillness of the fresh, bright morning, broken only by the twistering of birds and the murmur of the stream.

Ascending the mountain, the road winds in curve across its side; on one hand, stee, precipices; on the other, towering cliffs. Mountains everywhere; peak beyond peak as far as the eye can reach; bet, standing sentinel-like above the rest, is Mary's Took, the highest point on the Ridge (except the Peaks of Otter), the huge gray rock composing its summit outlined in solemn grandeur, against the bright blue sky.

Reaching the summit of the "Gap," we behold at our feet, stretching sway to the ceast, one of the finest landscape views in the world—a section of the beautiful Piedmont Valley, extending from the Biue Ridge to Tidewater.

CONDITION OF THE SOUTH.

Although he was shy on political questions, Mr. Stephens talked quite freely in relation to the condition of the South. The talk about the negro exodus he denominated as "bosh," a word he repeated several times, and said that the popular feeling in the South, taking it as a whole, was that the negro, like anybody else, could go away if he wanted to at any time, and come back again if he wanted to in the same way. No restrictions were placed upon the colored race in the South, and whatever privileges their emancipation brought them they were allowed. Speaking for his own State, he could say that there were more white men at work raising c ton than there were negroes, and it had been so ever since the war. Both whites and blacks own places of their own, and both whites Descending the other side, we catch some lovely panoramic views of the ferilic Page valley. Under a blazing sun; and fauned by a breeze which has lost its original mountain freshness, we proceed up this valley to Luray, a pretty little village which obests two hotels and three churches:

Just one mile northwest of Luray, in Page country, rises an unpretentious losting hill, whose soil is thin and poor bearing no vegetation except a growth of scrub-oak and pine, which crests the top. On the southeast side of this hill, near the foot, lies the entrance to the cave, over, which a two-story frame building has been erected. From the lower room, we descend a fight of steps fifty feet in length, walled in on both sides. At the bottom we pass through a lew, exched aperture, down more steps, to a platform of the first Camber.

Once there, we "bout face" and look at the entrance, down which the light filters in dim, blue rays. On one side of the ychill gainst the dark rock of the platform on which they reets, are various groups of miniature statuary, marble-white, and perfectly chiefled; the other side is flanked by a pleturesque pile of rocks. Turning sagin, we observe that this chamber is long and lofty. Fronting the entrance, stands a large column, reaching from floor to celling, beautifully grooved, and bearing the patriotic appellation or Washington's monument. Behind this column. THE SUN FOR 1879.

THE SUN WILL be printed every day during the year to come. Its purposes and method will be the same as in the past. To present all the news in a a readable shape, and to tell the truth though the heavens fail.

THE SUN has been, and will continue to be independent of everybody and everything save the Truth and its own convictions of duty. That is the only policy which an henest newspaper need have. That is the policy which has won for this newspaper ine confidence and friendship of a wider constituency than was ever enjoyed by any other American Journal.

THE SUN is the newspaper for the people. It is not for the rich man against the poor man, or for the poor man against the rich man, but it seeks to do equal justice to all the interests in the community. It is not the organ of any person, class, sect or party. There need be no mystery about its loves and hates. It is for the honest man against the assamble and for the honest. Republican an against the dishonest Republican and for the honest Republican as against ithe dishonest Democrat. It does not take its cue from the ulterances of any politician or political organization. It gives its support unreservedly when men or measures are in agreement with the Constitution and with the principles upon "which this Republic was founded for the people. Whenever the Constitution and constitutional principles are violated—as in the outrageous conspiracy of 1876, by which a man not elected was placed in the President's office, where he still remains—it speaks out for the right. That is THE SUYs idea of Independance. In this respect there will be no change in its programme for raccals frauds and humburs of all servir and elec-

FOR THE CURE OF Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint, DYSPERSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

DAIN in the right side, under the I edge of the ribs, increases on pres-sure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone some-thing which ought to have been done, A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation. tion of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. It is too soon to forget the rava es of this terrible disease, which will no doubt return in a more malignant and virulent form in the fail of 1879.

MERRELL'S HEPATINE, a Remedy discovered in Southern Nubla and used with such wonderful results in South America where the most aggravated cases of fever are found, causes from one to two ounces of bile to be filtered or strained from fine blood each time it passes through the Liver, as long as an excess of bile exists. By its wonderful action on the Liver and Stomach the HEPATINE not only prevents it a certainty any kind of Fever and Black Vomit, but also cures Headache, Constipation of the Bowels, Dyspepsia and all Malarial diseases.

No one need fear Yellow Fever who will expel the Malarial Poison and excess of bile from the blood by using MERRELL'S HEPATINE, which is sold by all Druggists in 25 cent and $1.0^{-0} bottles, or will be sent by express by the Propriecom, REMARKABLE CURE OF SCROFULA, de Case of Col. J, C. Branson.

Kinustron, Ga., September 15, 1871.
Gents.—For sixteen years I have been a great aufferer from Scrolua is its meat distressing forms. I have been confined to ny room and bed for fifteen years with excellous alcorations. The anost approved remedies for such eases had been used, and the most eminent physicians consulted, without any decided beueft. Thus prostrated, distressed, desponding, I was advised by Dr. Ayer, of Floyd County, Ga., to commence the use of your Compound Extract Stillingia. Language is as insufficient to describe the relief I obtained from the use of the Stillingia as it is to convey an adequate idea of the intensity of my suffering before using your medicine; sufficient to say, I abandoned all other remedies and continued the use of your Extract of Stillingia, until I can say truly, "I am cured of all pain," of all disease, with nothing to obstruct the active pursuit of my profession. Mr. et han eight months have elapsed since this remarkable cure, without any return of the disease.

For the truth of the above statement, I refer to any gentleman in Barlow County, Ga., and to the members of the bar of Cherokee Circuit, who are acquainted with me. I shall ever remain, with the deepest gratifude, your obedient servant,

A MIRACLE.

A MIRACLE.

WEST POINT, GA., Sept. 16, 1870.

GENTS—My daughter was taken on the 25th day of June, 1843, with what was supposed to be Acute Rheumatism, and was treated for the same with no success. In March, following, pieces of bone began to work out of the right arm, and continued to appear: it all the bone from the elbow to the shoulder joint came out. Many pieces of bone came out of the right foot and leg. The case was then pronounced one of White Swelling. After having been confined about six years to her bed, and the case considered hopeless, I was induced to try Dr. Pemberton's Compound Extract of Stillingia, and was so well satisfied with its effects that I have continued the use of it until time present.

My daughter was confined to her bed about six years before she sat up or even turned over without pieces. Since now sits up all day, and sowe most of hor time—has walked across the room. Her general health is now good, and I believe she will, as her limbs gain strength, walk well. I stirtbute her recovery, with the blessing of God, to the use of your invaluable medicine.

With gratitude, I am yours truly,
